Summary of Robert J. Cunnings's The Official DLAB Training Manual Everest Media, 2022-04-17T22:59:00Z
Please note: This is a companion version & not the original book. Sample Book Insights: #1 The Defense Language Aptitude Battery Test is a standardized test that was developed to measure the applicant's aptitude for language studies. The military takes the scores very seriously and believes that it is a good indicator of the applicant's chances of surviving a tough language school like DLI. #2 The DLAB test determines which category of languages you can be assigned to. The categories are based on lettering systems, grammatical structures, intonations, and overall difference from English.

The scores required for each category are as follows: Category I: Dutch, French, Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish; Category II: German; Category III: Hebrew, Russian, Tagalog, Thai, and Vietnamese; and Category IV: Arabic, Chinese, Japanese, and Korean. #3 The Defense Language Aptitude Battery test can only be taken once every six months, so failing to get the required score would mean that the applicant would have to wait a full six months to retake the test, making proper preparation even more important. #4 The DLAB is graded on a logarithmic scale with scores ranging from 0 to 164. The tests are graded on a computer and, once you have completed the test, most facilities will release the scores to you immediately. However, in some cases the scores are sent to your command and will take much longer.

Language Aptitude: Advancing

Theory, Testing, Research and Practice brings together cutting-edge global perspectives on foreign language aptitude. Drawing from educational psychology, cognitive science, and neuroscience, the editors have assembled interdisciplinary authors writing for an applied linguistics and education audience. The book is broken into five major themes: revisiting and updating current language aptitude theories and models; emerging insights from contemporary research into language aptitude and the age factor or the critical period hypothesis; redefining constructs and broadening territories of foreign language aptitude; exploring language aptitude from a neurocognitive perspective; and exploring future directions of foreign language aptitude research. Focused on critical issues in foreign language aptitude and second language learning and teaching, this book will be an important research resource and supplemental reading in both applied linguistics and cognitive psychology.

Shortening of Defense Language Aptitude Battery
1981 The Defense Language Institute, Foreign Language Center (DLIFLC) is the proponent for the Defense Language Aptitude Battery (DLAB), used in screening recruits for aptitude to learn foreign languages. DLIFLC is attempting to shorten DLAB without decreasing its reliability or validity. Item analysis data was used to plan eleven possible shortening strategies with different number of items deleted from original test. One hundred sixty-four answer sheets were rescored and recorrelated with a foreign language course grade after items had been deleted according to each strategy. Tests from another sample will also be rescored and recorrelated with the criterion using each of the test shortening strategies in order to cross-validate the original results.
