Human Digital Twins for

Medical and Product

Engineering Jörg Miehling

2024-10-25 The current trend towards digitalization of human-centred engineering processes in conjunction with advances in (bio-)mechanistic modelling, high-performance computing, artificial intelligence (AI) and sensor technology leads to unprecedented transformation potentials in medical, product and human factors engineering for the enhancement of human-technology interaction as well as medical treatment outcomes. Biomechanical simulations hold high potential by revealing the processes and inner strain conditions of the human body. For reliable simulation results, a model suitable for the application and a way to measure/estimate/predict the human motion behaviour and the interaction with the environment and/or interacting technology are necessary. In this context we refer to a human digital twin as an extension and connection of participant/person-specific biomechanical human models with data streams from clinical observation, operational use of technology or daily life. Each human digital twin is an instance digitally representing a specific person in healthy or pathological state suitable for the specified application.

G. Kravets 2023-07-31 This book is devoted to the study of engineering and control technologies for the cyber-physical systems development. This book defines the approaches in the engineering leverage the exploitation of artificial intelligence and most urgent computing methods. The authors study the activities allows for the developing new and perspective concepts of robotics systems combining various machine learning methods, uncertainty explanation approaches, computer vision and unmanned aerial systems control technologies including artificial neural networks and simulation modeling by addressing a large scale of applications. The book also describes new materials engineering as well as implementation of these technologies in the different domains such as polymeric film production, polymer composition, and roller squeezing of leather, in order to realize the novel cyber-physical systems, their functionalities, and features. The authors describe the development of method for increasing the software efficiency, considering the increasing complexity of the computing systems and the importance of ensuring accuracy and velocity of modelling. The book also analyses algorithms for fuzzy models and systems, including the cyber-physical real-time systems, and non-stationary object with discrete time. The authors highlight the problem of ensuring the quality on engineering technologies for cyber-physical systems as the most important and consider different approaches to its solution.
